FITZ, Reginald Heber, MD Died peacefully in the company of loved ones, May 28th, at the age of 92 at Woodstock Terrace, Woodstock VT. He is survived by his current wife, Constance McCarthy, her three children, Kitty, Jimmy, Annie, and her three grandchildren. He was preceded in death by Edna Wilmot Woelfel with whom he had four children, Reginald (deceased October 2012), (Joan Marie Hart), Tracy, L.Ac., Dr. Grahame (Elizabeth), Dr. Ralph (Barbara) Fitz. He was the much loved grandfather of Reginald, Michael, Allison, Dr. David, Alexandra (Ben Blais), Victoria, and Nicholas Fitz. He is also survived by three sisters, Phoebe Wallace (Richmond, VA), Edith Hemenway and Jean Buffum (Providence, RI). Preceded in death by brother William Fitz. Born in Brookline, MA in 1920, Dr. Fitz's parents were Dr. Reginald Fitz and Phoebe Wright Fitz. He was a graduate of the Park School and Milton Academy, Milton, MA. He followed both his father, Dr. Reginald Fitz, professor of medicine, and his grandfather, Dr. Reginald Heber Fitz, professor of pathology to Harvard College, class of 1942 and to Harvard Medical School, class of 1945. During WWII he served in Japan with the Army Medical Corps. Dr. Fitz began his medical career in internal medicine at the University of Colorado where he became a professor of medicine and an assistant dean. In 1961 he was commissioned to start a medical school at the University of New Mexico and by 1965 the medical school had the first four year program graduating under his deanship. This was a lifetime achievement for Dr. Fitz. He developed the Regional Medical Program in New Mexico. He went on to work at the Commonwealth Fund in New York City for several years before retiring. Dr. Fitz continued his interest in medicine and health issues throughout his life. He often attended Grand Rounds at Dartmouth Hitchcock Medical Center and served as a board director at Mt. Ascutney Hospital. He was an avid golfer, bridge player, reader, and crossword puzzler. He enriched many lives and will be sorely missed by family and friends.
